Preparing Powerful Presentations

The Planning Process

Course Instructor: Constant Hine

Do you find you always have more content than you can possibly fit in the time for delivery? Are you frustrated that after your presentations you don't see learners take action or make meaningful changes? This workshop is designed for experienced adult educators to thoughtfully approach how to best plan, organize and present their content to engage adult learners and maximize the potential for deep and lasting learning to occur. We will explore how to balance the coverage of content with providing meaningful learning experiences for the audience to interact with the content in the timeframe you actually have to work with as outlined in Part 3 of the handbook, Preparing Powerful Presentations by Constant Hine.

Participants will be encouraged to focus on a specific topic or course they will soon or currently offer to use for practical hands on practice during this session.
